All communications to the Executive Committee of the Southern Rights Party should be addressed to W. H. SPANKE, the Secretary of the Committee; and all information furnished or official documents issued by the Committee, will be signed by A. O. BRANNIN, the Chairman, and countersigned by the Secretary.

Where Do We Stand?

We are on the eve of an important and exciting political canvass. The people of our State are to be divided on issues affecting their dearest interests and most sacred rights.

The liberties of a proud people, the destiny of a noble Commonwealth, are at stake. It becomes a duty which no patriot can disregard, before entering the lists and giving his voice and his influence to one or the other party for weal or woe, to pause and reflect well on the situation of the combatants, to consider the points of difference between them, and to finally shape his action with a view to the good and safety of the Union.

In times like these, all issues before the people should be clearly defined and frankly and fully stated.

Any attempt at concealment or equivocation is evidence of want of faith in the justice and strength of the cause advocated.

Those who seek to cheat the people with false promises, to deceive them by assuming virtues they have not, merit the reproaches and condemnation of all good men. Sincerity and candor are the only virtues which indicate the purity of the motives, and the confidence in the strength of a just cause, by which he is actuated; and those who dare make an honest appeal to an intelligent people are honest heard with at attention and respect, and even where their arguments do not convince the judgment, their ingenuous candor never fails to win applause.

If there are those among us so lost to every sense of obligation to their country, as to duty to themselves and to posterity, as to seek to obtain political position and importance by astutiously and systematically diverting the public mind from the true and simple, though important, questions which really demand consideration and must soon be solved for all time to come, they render such assistance to the enemies of Republican Liberty as can only be given by false and treacherous friends.

What are the issues between the Southern Rights men and the Unionists of Kentucky? How far do they agree?

1. In the Sixth of January Convention, the "Union" men attributed the pending troubles to the "broken faith and bad fellowship" of the people and the States of the North, whose "palpably unjust and unconstitutional" claims they said "would not be submitted to by a free people just of their rights."

2. In this, they really justified the conduct of the seceded States; and affirmed the duty of the Free States to make satisfactory concessions to the just demands of the seceded States.

3. They agreed that CRITTENDEN'S proposed amendment to the Constitution of the United States is a fair and just basis of settlement; and in affirming that the process of separation should continue, Kentucky and such other States as should approve this "should unite in a Middle or Central Convention; they made the proposition an ultimatum.

4. And in making an ultimatum, they pledged themselves to take nothing less than demanded.

5. And the Journal, which is as authoritative as even the action of a State Convention, has solemnly declared that the only difference between the seceded States and the Union men is as to the time and mode of resistance."

A comparison instituted between these positions of the Union men and the Southern Rights party, would not show a very serious difference; and the attentive observer, knowing nothing of the under currents and secret workings and private plotting and selfish purposes and desperate intrigues of political managers, would be at a loss to understand the difference of the issues raised between the parties here.

Do the Unionists believe the North are to blame for the separation of the States? So do we.

Do the Unionists believe that the claims of the Southern States are "palpably unjust and unconstitutional," and should not be "submitted to by a free people just of their rights"? So do we.

Do the Unionists believe that the North ought to restore the Union and give peace to the country? So do we.

Do the Unionists believe that the CRITTENDEN Amendment is less than we are entitled to under the existing Constitution and the decision of the Supreme Court, and that having proposed it in the spirit of conciliation and harmony, the South ought not to accept less than its equivalent? So do we.

Do the Unionists believe that the South should resist any attempt to carry out the policy foreshadowed in the Calico platform, as maintained a few weeks since by the Journal? So do we.

We believe both the Southern Rights men and the Unionists are in favor of a Border Slave State Confederacy.

We don't understand that the Unionists advocate the coercion of the seceded States by the Federal Government, though they certainly give aid and comfort to the present Administration.

Do the Unionists believe that the seceded States have abandoned the Black and Tan platform, and that the only serious question in Kentucky, it appears to us, is in reference to a choice between a Middle Confederacy and a Southern Confederacy, all attempts at reconstruction falling, and the Unionists preferring to see the Union formed into three or more Confederacies, Kentucky going with the Middle States, and the Southern Rights men desiring rather to have but two Confederacies, our State being with her day-slavery States.

But indications favor the belief that the Unionists, since the accession to power of a Black Republican President, by whom $50,000,000 of public patronage is to be annually distributed, have repented of what they had said against the North and in favor of Southern Rights, and are now for a Union with the North, not on the basis of CRITTENDEN'S proposition, but on such terms and conditions as the Free States of their own free will and accord may see proper to make.

If this belief is well founded, then, indeed, is the issue well defined, and not mischievous; and on the one side will be arrayed only the friends of unconditional submission to the usurpations of a Black Republican Government, and on the other all the friends of State Rights, State equality, and constitutional liberty.

In order to aid the public in arriving at a correct conclusion as to the position of the Unionists, we hope the Journal, which thinks and speaks for this organization, will endeavor the following questions, which we respectfully submit for its consideration:

1. Is the Federal Union as it existed on the 6th of November last dissolved?
2. If the Union is dissolved by the action, whether right or wrong, of South Carolina, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas, and the Federal Government formally recognize the independence of these States?
3. If the Union is not dissolved, the States named still forming a part of the
